RIDING THE HYPE
AI IN LEGAL PRACTICE

AI has many potential uses in legal practice... but replacing lawyers is not one of them. Here are just a few!

RESEARCH ASSISTANT

Appropriately trained AI may be able to provide relevant sources for a lawyer to begin research, but perhaps a better use of the technology is asking it to summarise a provided case or brief.

DRAFTING ASSISTANT

Another potential use is as a drafting assistant. Something AI is good at is replicating the patterns in written words - a key element of precedent management in law firms.

DIGITAL ASSISTANT

Another potential use is as a digital assistant. Jack gives the example of a practice management AI which sends out the firms' bills to clients.

STRATEGY ASSISTANT

In the not-too-distant future, an AI integrated with a practice may be able to provide advice on strategies for growing the business. A true business partner!
